

To Whom It May Concern:

I am a math teacher at Redwood High School and Jake Nordstrom is currently enrolled in my Pre-Calculus class. Jake recently sent me a detailed description of his Eagle Scout project to get a baseball team from Cuba to visit the United States. To say that I was impressed is an under statement. In reading about Jake's mission I wanted to help out in any way that I could, so writing a letter of recommendation for Jake seemed like a good starting point.

I have only known Jake for three months. However, I feel that this has been enough time for me to get to know him as a student and as a person. Jake is a very intelligent young man and has proven to be one of my strongest math students. He is also responsible, organized, motivated, and trustworthy. His intelligence, combined with these other skills, lead me to believe that Jake will follow through on any commitments that he has made to the Cuban baseball players, and supporters of his project. I believe that he will be honest and straight forward with all parties involved and will work tirelessly until his goal is achieved.

Jake is a very special person. He is a kind young man, who is positive and almost always has a smile on his face. He is passionate about baseball, Eagle Scouts, and making a difference in the world. I have complete faith in him. Thank you for taking the time to read this letter.

Sincerely,

Julie Norwood
